SKETCHES OF LITTLE OLD NEW YORK

BY O. O. McINTYRE

Telegram Bureau: Rooms 121-125 Hotel Majestic, West Seventy-second Street.

NEW YORK, May 11.—Sam Wah and his sad-iron partner, Ling Sing, managing directors of the smoke-tailed dragon laundry just under Tom Long's chop suey rest cure on Eighth avenue, staged their great act "The Asbestos Kids" the other afternoon when fire swept the premises.

The fire drove all the Eighth avenue set away from the tables and the cashier, enveloped the laundry in unlaunched sheets of flame and kept the trusty smoke eaters on the hop for half an hour.

Daniel in his fiery furnace or the justly celebrated boy of burning deck fame had nothing on Sam and Ling. Firemen were driven back from the laundry time and time again but Sam and Ling stuck to their tubs. When the fire was finally doused the firemen went down to get the bodies of the asbestos kids.

They were in the cellar with jades and prayer stones and tubs of suds all around and still at their task of washing soiled linen.

"Collaps, shilira, bulned!" exclaimed Sam. "Aw hell!" said the brave firemen in chorus as they trooped out.

A Broadway film concern has received this letter from an ambitious cinema star aspirant:

I am desirous of becoming an actor in your company. I can't say that I have had any experience in this line but I have had a little in the Amateur Minstrel Line.

I am twenty years of age, and am also married although you would not think it if you should see me.

If you think that there is a chance of giving me a try-out kindly advise me at once and I will respond immediately. I can furnish you with my latest Photo, if necessary.

Full sympathy with the late Richard III that time he was bustling about inquiring anxiously for a horse is being felt by officers of the New York National Guard.

The talk among them is that the country has been raked clean of anything like a good cavalry horse by the agents of the European nations at war.

Should New York and the national guard organizations of other states be called upon to swing into line for real action some of the colonels would have to ride ostriches.

Col. Ardolph Kline was only mayor of New York three months after the tragedy of Mayor Gaynor's death but he evidently made a hit while on the job. More than 20,000 of the most prominent citizens in private and public life tendered him a military ball at the Hotel Majestic last week.

He was escorted to the hotel by members of the Old Guard. Rear Admiral Sigbee led the grand march closely followed by Governor Whitman and police Commissioner Arthur Woods and his fiancée, a niece of the late Pierpont Morgan.

Colonel Kline is a business man of Brooklyn and thinks there is no city in the world like Brooklyn—but despite this conviction his friends decided he was entitled to a complimentary testimonial and it was given him.
